

ACI, one of the first certification bodies being granted the OHSAS 18001 accreditation from
Hong Kong Accreditation
Services (HKAS)

The OHSAS 18001 standard was developed to control and improve occupational health and safety performance. It is a generic standard based on the idea of embedding systems and processes that define how health and safety issues are managed across the business. It can be applied to businesses of all sizes.

Certification to the OHSAS 18001 standard heightens adherence to organization's health and safety policy and procedures. The implementation of it demonstrates due diligence, good governance and competent management committed to health and safety in the workplace. It also demonstrates that the organisation has attained an internationally recognized occupational health and safety standard ACI, as an accredited OHSAS 18001 third party certification body, we work alongside your company's health and safety professionals to implement OHSAS 18001 in your business effectively. We can help you through the process towards becoming OHSAS 18001 certified company with training, gap assessment and certification audits.
